EGYPT AT MILAN.

ACTION BY LORD CROMER.

Abd-el Hamid Bey Abeza, writes to "Al Modyed" as follows:

After my return from Milan, where I attended the recent exhibition, I submitted to the British Agent in Cairo, some notes regarding the Egyptian section of the exhibition, which was the worst on show. It contained disgraceful exhibits which would do great harm to the reputation of Egypt. Lord Cromer was then absent in London, but his secretary, Mr. Byle, submitted my notes to his lordship with some remarks added by himself. On receipt of the document Lord Cromer gave special attention to the matter, and put himself in communication with the Italian Ambassador in London, with a view to preventing further such exhibits in the name of Egypt. The results of his Lordship's communication to the Italian Ambassador were that the Italian Government promised to prohibit any exhibition to be labelled "Egyptian" without the consent of the Egyptian Government. Lord Cromer, on the other hand, promised that the Egyptian Government would henceforth undertake the organisation of the Egyptian section in any international show.

MIRALAI MACAULEY BEY.

The following War Office Order has been published:

With reference to the War Office Gazette No. 43, of 1906, notifying the retirement of Miralai G. B. Macauley Bey, C. M. G., the Sirdar desires to place on record the good work performed by this officer during the time he has served in His Highness's staff. Miralai Macauley Bey joined the Sudan Government Railways in December 1896 and has held the appointment of director for seven years. The satisfactory administration of the railways under somewhat adverse conditions, the able direction, and the many surveys undertaken by the Sudan Government, and notably the extension of the line to the Red Sea and Dongola, not only testify to Macauley Bey's high professional qualifications, but also to the thoroughness and excellence of his work. The Sirdar on behalf of the Egyptian Army wishes to express his regret at the retirement from the Army of this valuable officer and to wish him every success in his future career.

AL AZHAR.

The "Mokattam" authoritatively denies the report of dissatisfaction attributed to the ulama of Al Azhar touching the appointment of Sheikh Mohamed Shaker to succeed Sheikh El Sherbini, declaring that in the event of his resignation he would be followed by another sheikh whose wisdom and profound knowledge of theology and religious law eminently qualify him for the honor. As for Sheikh Shaker, he is to return to Alexandria, to resume his work of reform in the University.

OFFICIAL RESIGNATIONS.

At the last meeting of the Council of Ministers the following resignations were accepted:—Yacoub Pasha Artin, Under-Secretary of State for Public Instruction; Hussein Bey Riz, representative of the Parquet at the Alexandria Mixed Tribunal; and Dr. Mohamed Bey Shukri, professor of medicine at the Kasr-el-Aini School of Medicine. Yassin Bey Mustapha, M.D. of Keneh, was retired on pension. His successor has not yet been appointed.

THE EGYPTIAN UNIVERSITY.

THE DANGER OF APATHY.

The "Globe's" article on the National University which we reproduced the other day may be said to demand a reply—not in the form of a verbal protest, but rather of a demonstration that Moslem Egypt has some real interest in higher education. We do not ourselves entirely share the fears expressed by our London contemporary that the University may become a hot-bed of Pan-Islamic agitation. Our fear is that after a spasmodic effort the public will relapse into a state of good-natured apathy, that subscriptions will dwindle, and interest wane, and that finally the National University scheme will end in failure. In our opinion such a termination will not redound to the credit of the Egyptians. They have had an excellent chance of showing that the claims of their journalistic representatives were well founded; that higher education was ardently desired by the young intelligence of the country; that rich and poor were ready to contribute to the scheme; that the neglect of higher education by the Ministry of Public Instruction was resented by all the "best elements" of the population.

We cannot disguise the fact that the scheme is not meeting with the support that it deserves, and that the unreadiness of Moslem Egypt to contribute thereto is the best defence the Government can possibly offer to the criticisms that have so plentifully occupied the contributors to the Native Press. If this neglect and apathy persist, what will become of the impassioned pleadings of Mastapha Kamel, of the daily diatribes against Mr. Danlop, of the communications to the British Press? May it not be possible that the Egyptian Government has throughout taken a saner view of the possibilities of higher education in Egypt than many of its self-appointed critics? We do not wish to "crab" the scheme, but we should like to have some evidence that it is going to meet with the support of a public that was represented by orators and journalists as gasping for a deep draught of the Pierian Spring.

A MOSLEM AGITATOR.

The Malta correspondent of the "Daily Telegraph" reports that there came recently to Malta a personage who does not believe that there is no important future for Islam in North Africa, and he is no passive prophet like the excommunicated Abbe Doreau, who foretells everything good for the financial year 1909. He is a militant minister of the people of Allah, and an accepted authority. He was expelled from French territory, and has now been sent away from Malta. He speaks of a holy war, and of going to Egypt. To Europeans he belies his looks in his turban, chocolate burnous, half-bare legs, cotton hose and heelless slippers, but he is a master of many languages, a good speaker, a clever writer, and has financial resources and a knowledge of English.

PAN-ISLAMISM.

The Pan-Islamic Society is about to lose one of its most energetic members, one of its founders, Mr. Abdullah Al-Mannan Subrawardy, who is returning to India, after having been called to the Bar at Gray's Inn, but intending to visit on his way home Constantinople and Egypt. In order to say "Good-bye" to him the Pan-Islamic Society gave a musical "At Home" at the Criterion Restaurant, which was very largely attended. The guests were received by the new secretary, Mr. Kidwai, and among those present were Daniel Bey, of the Ottoman Embassy, and other leading representatives of the Islamic colony in London. In the evening Mr. Kidwai delivered a brief speech, wishing God-speed to Mr. Subrawardy. He remarked that the foundation of that society, due in a large degree to their guest, was a most happy idea. Mr. Subrawardy briefly replied, appealing to all present to continue the good work.

THE SULTAN'S SAFETY.

Owing to absurd rumours that an attempt would be made by a very fast steamer on the Sultan on Mid-Ramadan when His Majesty was crossing to Stambul to venerate the relics of the Prophet, the most extraordinary precautions were taken. All steamers from the black Sea and Mediterranean were stopped at the entrance to the Bosphorus or the Dardanelles, and all traffic and work on the ships was suspended. The harbour, which is usually thronged with boats and shipping, was cleared of everything, and all lighters, caïques, and boats were sent behind the bridge of the Golden Horn, and the entrance was blocked. Only police boats were left. In spite of the above precautions, a Greek steamer attempted to enter the harbour, and when she was stopped by the police, tried to turn, but got caught in a current, which carried her right on to the Sultan's private landing-stage on Seraglio Point, which she only escaped destroying by letting go her anchors.

CAPTAIN WALDBERG'S CAREER.

EXTRAORDINARY DISCLOSURES.

We have great pleasure in laying before our readers the history of the first and, let us hope, the last exponent in Egypt of the methods of certain American journals.—Captain Jorge Nelson Waldberg, whose recent appearance in H.B.M.'s Consular Court at Cairo was attended by many remarkable incidents.

Captain Waldberg is the editor and proprietor of "The Oriental Truth," which is the only American daily newspaper published in the Levant, and is an interesting example of the Yellow Press of the United States transplanted to the banks of the Nile. As a guarantee of its character, Captain Waldberg's organ is printed on paper of an obtrusively yellow character; in fact, its tinge is identical with the quarantine colours. It is printed in French and Arabic, and was originally only issued weekly, and illustrated with ribald cartoons and faulty photos.

His Early Career.

The Captain arrived in Egypt about a year ago from Constantinople. He is, so he says, of Latin-American origin, and we believe his father was an Austrian. He adopted a military career some years ago, and served in the army of one of the South American Republics, whence he obtained his rank of captain. Subsequently he went northwards to the United States and embarked on a journalistic career. He was an ardent advocate of the Democratic platform, and had a paper of his own at New York. He next appears as a newspaper correspondent in Central America, where he claims to have taken the only photograph of the newly-formed Panama army. Next he transferred his sphere of operations to Europe and joined the American contingent in the Hellenic-Turkish war. At Athens he married the daughter of a Greek colonel, by whom he has issue. From Greece he went to Constantinople.

His Stamboul Career.

He took up his residence in the Capital of the Ottoman Empire in the attic of a boarding-house opposite the Maison Orino, now occupied by the American Embassy. He first started various schemes of a journalistic nature, but these failing, he began the compilation of a biographical album, entitled "Le Corps Diplomatique et Personages en Orient." His first subscriber was the Hon. John G. A. Leishman, the American Ambassador, from whom he received $25 with the Ambassadorial signature. This was the first step in the ladder of his subsequent career; for, fortified with this patronage, he approached the other members of the Diplomatic Corps. The Egyptian Patriarch, among others, refused point blank to subscribe, whereupon the Captain went to the Bulgarian in Exarcho, who, on being informed of the Patriarchal parsimony, was only too delighted to show his generosity as against the meanness of his hated rival. To show his gratitude the Captain, whose child had been baptized by the Greek Church, had his progeny rebaptized by the "Schismatical" Bulgarian. Fortified by this high ecclesiastical patronage, he had moved from his humble room in the second-rate boarding-house to the Grand Hotel, Kroczer. He engaged the services of an Albanian clerk, Philipp Nogga, by name, who had been secretary to the Grand Vizier, Ferid Pasha. The services of this clerk proved of great value. His previous official position had made him an adept in all the wiles of intrigue that ever surrounds Yildiz. His knowledge of the devious methods of "backstairs" diplomacy was extensive and peculiar. All the past reputations of the man who backed for the time being in the Sultan's favour, together with the characters of their hangers-on, were known to him to a nicety. He was, in a word, a walking encyclopaedia of the inner history of Yildiz. A recent visitor on the Near East remarked: "If anybody could put on paper a truthful account of one month's doings at Yildiz, the book would be worth one thousand pounds—take any month in the year. That small circumference of two or three square miles on the top of the hill above Ortakoni and Beshiktash contains more iniquity, probably, than any area ten times as great on the surface of the globe. And the consequences of what goes on so quietly in those shaded gardens and kiosques influence the whole of the world, more than half the barbarian world." It is easy to imagine what a treasure-trove Philipp Nogga the Albanian was to Captain Waldberg. He knew every track through the monstrous undergrowth of intrigue and corruption which surrounds the decaying fabric of the Ottoman Empire.

The Magnum Opus.

Under the guidance of the secretary of the Grand Vizier the Captain was enabled to find plenty of material for his magnum opus, "Le Corps Diplomatique et Personages en Orient." Details of the careers of exalted State dignitaries began to be revealed, strange stories were bruited about as to the revelations that the work was to make, and the parasites, who fatten on the carcasses of an Empire in its death agony, began to be seriously disturbed at the prospect of the impending publication of Captain Waldberg's great work.

The Captain was most pertinacious in canvassing, but he was not received with open arms by all the Ambassadors. Some diplomatists simply referred him for the details he desired to the official lists in their respective Foreign Office Lists, while others indefinitely postponed their decision. With the ecclesiastical bigwigs of Stambul his success was more marked. The Armenian Patriarch, Ormanian, the Bulgarian Exarch, and other high pontiffs were pleased to lend their patronage. But his great friend and supporter was the Envoy of the King of Kings, General Mehdieh, the envoy of the Negus, to whom the Captain disposed of a sewing machine and other useful products of Occidental civilization.

The General on his return to Abyssinia procured for the Captain a decoration and an autograph letter from the Negus. Meanwhile the great work was progressing and the Captain became more prosperous. The Sultan's American A.D.C., Captain Becknam, gave him his patronage, and soon a notice announcing the forthcoming book was inserted in the "Levant Herald."

The Suspicious Turk.

Having thus attained to a certain degree of notoriety, the Captain now directed his attention to the great personages in the immediate entourage of the Sultan. The Sheikh al-Islam, Hashem Pasha, the Minister of Public Instruction, and other high functionaries, civil and military, were now approached and given their biographies, which were to be printed both in French and Turkish. At this juncture his Imperial Majesty stepped in. Whether it was only suspicion, or whether one or other of his courtiers objected to their biographies appearing cannot be stated with any certainty, but the fact remains that the Imperial Fiat went forth and the great work was suddenly and mysteriously stopped.

Diplomatic Action.

The Captain declared that this action on the part of the Sultan was a monstrous abuse of authority, and as a free and independent citizen of the United States, he would never submit to such treatment. The American Ambassador was appealed to, and with success. Communications passed between Yildiz and the Embassy, and it was finally agreed that a handsome compensation should be given to the aggrieved author, whose asseptions were soothed by a handsome solution that went into four figures. His last days at Constantinople were spent in luxury at the Pera Palace Hotel, and then the Captain set sail to seek fresh fields and pastures new in the land of Egypt.

Conclusion.

Captain Waldberg is to be consoled with in his failure in Egypt. He has arrived too late. Had he only appeared in Cairo during the plummy days of the Ismailian Khedivate he would have had the most rosy prospects of a short but lucrative career, and might easily have received a fat pension on the condition of his withdrawal from the country. But times have changed, and there is very little scope now-days for gentlemen of his stamp. The best arena for his talents would be some unbragging little Republic in South or Central America, although it is said that journalists of his type are not known to wax prosperous in some Native States in India, but for this we cannot vouch. At any rate, Egypt is clearly not the country for him, and we fear that there is very little chance of "The Oriental Truth" developing into a paying newspaper property. But—happy thought—there is still a chance for him here. Why does he not get Mr. Wilfrid Blunt to take up his case as another "Atrocity of Justice under British Administration in Egypt"?

ALEXANDRIA CRIMINAL COURT.

The Attarin Native Court sentenced Mohamed Hassan Higazi, of Esbet el-Kom, near Damamhor, on Saturday to 15 years' imprisonment with hard labour for the murder of Ibrahim Ahmed el-Raye, of the same tribe, on the 1st September last; and sentenced the murderer's accomplice, Mohamed Sayid, Hashish by name, to 10 years' imprisonment with hard labour.

Yesterday morning, the same Court sentenced Mohamed Ahmed el-Dibali and Khamis el-Shiebi, of Kom el Kanatir, near Abou Homos, to 7 and 3 years' imprisonment with hard labour, respectively, for cattle stealing, and Ali Hassan el-Gammal, of Shamsah, near Rosetta, to 10 years' hard labour for attempting to steal cattle and seriously assaulting two native women.

Kharalambo Kornio, a "rayah" of Alexandria, was also sentenced on Saturday to 3 years' imprisonment for attempted murder.

ABBAS THEATRE, CAIRO.

The wrestling on Saturday-night was quite interesting. M. Paul Pons, the huge Frenchman, vanquished M. Limousin, his weight and strength proving far too much for his opponent, who, however, made a fine struggle and showed great activity. Mr. Cillis, English (sic), conquered M. Finnish, Swiss, after a short and lively bout. M. Finnish seemed to accept the result as quite usual and part of the day's work, as his usual luck! Nielo, the Italian, beat Sandorfi, the Hungarian, also after a good enough fight. The last and greatest event of the evening was the fight to a finish between Van de Berg, the Dutchman, and Schackmann, the "terrible" German. Schackmann's method did not at all appeal to the audience, nor, we must confess, to ourselves. If he did not actually foul repeatedly, he was at any rate very near; and we think he should have been severely cautioned at the first sign of offending. Anyhow, he won after some 35 minutes. Van de Berg made a splendid fight of it, and time after time recovered when defeat had seemed inevitable. He showed very great strength of arm, and more than once prevented the German performing his favourite trick of turning over and on to his feet; but the strength and weight of the other was too much for him, and he seemed quite exhausted at the finish.

FERREIRA INCITES FARMERS.

DUTCH LEADERS URGE LOYALTY.

CAPETOWN, November 10.

It is officially reported that the Transvaaler Ferreira, accompanied by several other Boers, entered the North-West of Cape Colony endeavouring to organise a rebellion. They surprised two police camps and seized arms and ammunition. Troops have gone to intercept them. 150 of the Cape police start for Prieska immediately.

(Later) The Ferreira party were recently employed in German South-West Africa. They wounded two troopers and captured a corporal. Ferreira is gaining some recruits and marching to Zwartmodder. It is reported that he is forcing farmers to join him, asserting that a rising in the Transvaal is imminent. The Government does not regard the rebellion as serious: the danger is that the inhabitants may be misled by exaggerated reports of Ferreira's successes.

The Government is adopting every measure to suppress the outbreak. The Dutch leaders in Capetown are advising the inhabitants in the North West to support the Government.

THE SINAI FRONTIER.

TEXT OF AGREEMENT.

The following is the text of the agreement arrived at by the Anglo-Egyptian and Turkish Commissioners concerning the delimitation of the Sinai Frontier, as published by the "Official Journal" of Saturday last:—

THIS IS THE AGREEMENT, SIGNED AND EXCHANGED AT RAFAH ON (13 SHABAN, 1324; 18TH AILUL, 1322) 1ST OCTOBER, 1906, BETWEEN THE COMMISSIONERS OF THE TURKISH SULTANATE AND THE COMMISSIONERS OF THE EGYPTIAN KHEDIVIATE, CONCERNING THE FIXING OF A SEPARATING ADMINISTRATIVE LINE BETWEEN THE VILAYET OF HEJAZ AND GOVERNORATE OF JERUSALEM, AND THE SINAI PENINSULA.

El Miralai Staff Officer Ahmed Muzaffer Bey and El Bimbashi Staff Officer Mohammed Fahmi Bey as Commissioners of the TURKISH SULTANATE, and Emir el Lewa Ibrahim Pasha and El Miralai R. C. R. Owen Bey as Commissioners of the EGYPTIAN KHEDIVIATE, having been entrusted with the delimitation of the ADMINISTRATIVE SEPARATING LINE between the Vilayet of HEJAZ and GOVERNORATE OF JERUSALEM, and the SINAI PENINSULA, have, in the name of the TURKISH SULTANATE and the EGYPTIAN KHEDIVIATE, agreed as follows:—

ARTICLE I.

THE ADMINISTRATIVE SEPARATING LINE, as shown on map attached to this AGREEMENT, begins at the point of RAS TABA on the western shore of the GULF OF AKABA and follows along the Eastern ridge overlooking WADI TABA, to the top of JEBEL FORT, from thence the SEPARATING LINE extends by straight lines as follows:—

From JEBEL FORT to a point not exceeding two hundred metres to the east of the top of JEBEL FATHI PASHA, thence to that point which is formed by the intersection of a prolongation of this line with a perpendicular line drawn from a point two hundred metres measured from the top of JEBEL FATHI PASHA along the line drawn from the centre of the top of that hill to MOPRAK POINT (the MOPRAK is the junction of the GAZA-AKABA and NEKHL-AKABA roads). From this point of intersection to the hill east of and overlooking THAMLET EL RADADI—place where there is water—so that the THAMLA (or water) remains west of the LINE, thence to the top of RAS RADADI marked on the above mentioned map as A. 3., thence to top of JEBEL SAFRA marked as A. 4., thence to top of eastern peak of UM GUF marked as A. 5., thence to that point marked as A. 7. north of THAMLET SUEILMA, thence to that point marked as A. 8. on west north-west of JEBEL SEMAUI, thence to top of hill west-north-west of BIR MAGHARA (which is the wall in the northern branch of the WADI MA YEIN, leaving that well east of the SEPARATING LINE), from thence to A. 9., from thence to RAS EL AIN marked as A. 10., from thence to a point on JEBEL UM HAWAWIT marked as A. 11., from thence to half distance between two pillars (which pillars are marked as A. 13.) under a tree three hundred and ninety metres south-west of BIR RAFAH, it then runs in a straight line at a bearing of 280° of the magnetic north (viz., 80° to the west) to a sand hill measured four hundred and twenty metres in a straight line from the above mentioned pillars, thence in a straight line at a bearing of 334° of the magnetic north (viz., 26° to the west) to the MEDITERRANEAN SEA passing over hill of ruins on the SEA SHORE.

ARTICLE 2.

The separating line mentioned in Article 1 has been indicated by a black, broken line on duplicate maps (annexed to this agreement) which shall be signed and exchanged simultaneously with the AGREEMENT.

ARTICLE 3.

Boundary pillars will be erected, in the presence of the Joint Commission, at intervals along the separating line, from the point on the MEDITERRANEAN shore to the point on the shore of the GULF OF AKABA.

ARTICLE 4.

These boundary pillars will be under the protection of the TURKISH SULTANATE and EGYPTIAN KHEDIVIATE.

ARTICLE 5.

Should it be necessary in future to renew these pillars, or to increase them, each party shall send a representative for this purpose. The positions of these new pillars shall be determined by the course of the separating line as laid down in the map.

ARTICLE 6.

All tribes living on both sides shall have the right of benefiting by the water as heretofore, viz., they shall retain their ancient and former rights in this respect.

Necessary guarantees will be given to Arab tribes respecting above.

Also TURKISH soldiers, NATIVE individuals and GENDARMES shall benefit by the water which remained West of the SEPARATING LINE.

ARTICLE 7.

Armed TURKISH soldiers and armed GENDARMES will not be permitted to cross to the west of the SEPARATING LINE.

ARTICLE 8.

Natives and Arabs of both sides shall continue to retain the same established and ancient rights of ownership of waters, fields and lands on both sides as formerly.

Commissioners of the Turkish Sultanate. (sd) Miralai Staff Officer MUZAFFER,

Commissioners of the Egyptian Khedivate. (sd) Emir Lewa IBRAHIM PASHA, (sd) Miralai R. C. R. OWEN.

(sd) Bimbashi Staff Officer FAHMY.

SMUGGLING IN BEYROUT.

A FATAL ATTEMPT.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Beyroul, November 7.

Smuggling and contraband under their various aspects have lately been rampant in Beyroul and its vicinity, and a shocking tragedy such as occurred last week was needed to awaken both the contrabandist and the authorities to a lively sense of the evils calculated to attend illicit practices. Two versions are current respecting the recent fatal event.

On the night of the 1st inst. a sailing craft loaded with guns and other prohibited goods, comprising possibly also tobacco, drew near the shore of the promontory where the lighthouse stands. Three of the contrabandists, who are all Moslems, went ashore to reconnoitre, prior to landing the goods. A Christian by the name of Jurji I'zan, who was in the habit of blackmailing such illicit traders, forthwith appeared on the scene to claim his usual share in exchange for silence. The contrabandists were naturally chafing under such an imposition, and this time they seemed determined to put a stop thereto, and they unceremoniously signified their intention to this self-imposed partner. Between such treacherous folks the transition from words to blows is almost unavoidable, and this time rifle shots were exchanged, in which the said Jurji was wounded in the stomach.

According to the first version and the one that the Moslems are freely circulating, it was the said Jurji I'zan, aided by two hidden companions, who during the skirmish killed two Moslem contrabandists, whose corpses have since been discovered, and they wounded the third one who was with them in the reconnoitring boat, and is now incarcerated in Beyroul prison. The second version runs as follows: After the passage of arms between the men in the boat and Jurji I'zan, the latter called for help from the Lebanese soldiers that patrol the locality. The boat then made back for the sailing vessel, but the men in the latter, mistaking in their fright and the darkness of the night, their comrades for a raiding patrol fired a volley at the boat, killing two and wounding a third. What supports this version are the facts of the bodies of the dead men being pierced with several bullets, which could not have been fired by Jurji I'zan with such odds against him, and there being one corpse in the boat and the other afloat on the coast to the other side of St. George's bay, in which direction neither the boat nor the corpse could have drifted, owing to the prevalence of a northerly wind at the time. The circumstances, therefore point to the probability of the sailing craft having towed both boat and corpse round to the other coast to mislead the authorities.

The report of rifles drew a Lebanese soldier to the spot. Finding Jurji I'zan stretched on the ground with a bleeding wound, he carried him to a house near by and reported the matter to Muzaffer Pasha, the Governor-General of the Lebanon. The doctors having reported that the wound was of too serious a nature to allow of the patient being sent to jail he was allowed to be attended to in the house of a relative. In the meantime the Vali reported to the Lebanon Government the details of the encounter according to the deposition of the wounded man who had survived the reconnoitring skirmish, and he requested that in the meanwhile the man should be vigilantly guarded. Accordingly a guard of four soldiers and a corporal was stationed round the house. Yesterday, however, it was discovered that the wounded man had disappeared, evidently having been carried off by friends.

It is said that the guard pleaded that they were overcome. Possibly they were drugged.

The discovery of the corpses of two of the leaders of the Moslem rabble was a great shock to the town, and the timorous section of the Christian population was almost in a state of panic. Thanks, however, to the vigilance and prudence of the Vali, trouble has been averted. He signified indirectly to the heads of the turbulent Moslem element that any attempt at disorder would be repressed with an iron hand, and moreover he despatched a squad of soldiers to police the Moslem quarters and the adjacent Christian one, called the Mazras, which has always stood the brunt of the Moslem attacks. The fact of such an event, calculated at any time to arouse the Moslems, taking place in the month of Ramadan and yet passing off without any evil consequences is of great credit to our tacitful Governor-General.
